No Weak Partiality.

There must be no sidestepping nor weak partiality because of political necessity of cowardice. If there is neutrality, it must be in word and deed. If a course is just and right, then we must live up on the side of right, whatever the cost.

Our nation professes to be Christian. If this is true, then at this time Christ is saying to us: "Ye are the salt of the earth; ye are the light of the world." Tonight we glory in the fact that we live under the Stars and Stripes. The United States has occupied a position of unparalleled bigness and influence before the world. Insisted on first place.
I'd be a traitor to my Lord if I failed to ascribe all this to Christianity, the rockbed of our republic. But have we measured up to our exalted privileges and responsibilities? Is it not because of sidestepping and shirking responsibilities that the cry has gone out for the New Americanism?

The new Americanism must be permested with truth and justice and then it must be daring, said Rev. George H. Strouse at the Sunday evening service of the First Baptist church in a sermon on The New Americanism, a topic of nation-wide interest at the present time. In part, Rev. Mr. Strouse said:

The most daring man this world has ever seen once gave expression to these vigorous words: "Ye are the all of the earth," "Ye are the light of the world." This man was Christ. He was by no means a negative preacher. We who love him glory in his daring in his boldness and in this supreme fact that in his ministry he constantive struck the positive note.

In these two statements there is crowded the supreme business of the church—of every righteous man and research administration in just one crossent administration in just one crossent administration in just one peech but I'm going to ouncture the present administration in just one place—what seems to me to be an inexcusable weakness. The daring and heroic have been conspicuously lacking in this administration. It has been repartited in its attitude and ing in this administration. It has been negative in its attitude and results. We have not preserved. We have not flooded the earth with the light of impartial justice. Senator Lodge in a speech in Concord at the graduating exercises said it was one thing to "keep the peace" and another to "keep the faith." He said: "We want peace almost above everything else, but we want more than that, the maintenance of the republic's ancient idealism—thus taking a courageous part in the world's moral uplift." Whatever the past has been, our nation is big enough to establish a precedent when a crisis demands it.

Want to Travel in Old Ruts. Want to Travel in Old Ruts.

People want to travel in the old ruts and this is just the opposition every reformer encounters. But some man must come on the scene and plough a new furrow and blaze a new trail. When God makes a nation great he intends that nation to take a leading part in emancipating men of every race from the shackles of every known form of servitude. The nation without any dare in its system must descend the ladder of honor and usefulness. The New Americanism must recognize this principle and must have the daring spirit.

Hughes to Lead the Way. Hughes to Lead the Way.

Some man who has already exemply fied in his own life this daring spirit must be summoned to lead the way. I believe that man to be Charies E. Hughes. One of the sanest and brainlest men in our country today. History will give him a place with Washbillies that the cry'has gone out for the New Americanism?

Asked to Pray for Peace,

Then a few men have been allowed to grow enormously rich furties asked to the rich of grow enormously rich furties of the content of the con tory will give him a place with Washington and Lincoln. In a peculiar sense Mr. Hughes has always been the people's man. The people believe in him and hence demanded that he lead them out of darkness into light. In a time of great danger the call came to Cincinnatus who was the sole hope of the Roman people. He was at work on his farm but responded and led the citizens against their foes.

ROAD'S TRAIN EARNINGS. Over Fifty Per Cent, of Trains Earned $1.00 or Less Per Train Mile.

During the two weeks ending January 31, there was a total of 2,043 trains, week days and Bundays, run on the New Haven railroad. An examination made by the Accounting department of the company of the earnings of these trains per mile shows that $87 week day trains and 238 Sunday trains, or a total of 55 per cent of all trains run on the New Haven in the period specified earned $1.00 or less per train mile.

There were 528 trains showing average per mile earnings of over $1.00 and up to $2.00. The percentage of trains included in this division was 26.3.

Sixty-four trains earned 10 cents or less a mile, and there were 537 trains earning 50 cents or less per mile. Trains earning 50 cents or less per mile comprised 26.8 per cent. of the to-

There were only 380 trains reporting earnings per mile of $2.00 or over. This was 18.6 per cent of the total?

Very little of the passenger service of the New Haven railroad is renumerative. For the eight months ending February 29 the passenger trains running on the New Haven earned $2.22 per mile. This was one of the highest average earnings per mile in the United States. Those wro do not analyse railroad figures might say that the record is a good one and that the company was making lots of money. The fact is, however, that the average cost of running all trains, freight and passenger, for eight months was exactly $2.22 per passenger train mile. This last nothing earned toward either taxes or interest.

The average cost of passenger train service, eliminating all expenses of manteinance and using only what is called transportation cost, station service, engine service, train service, etc., was $1.21. Passenger trains as well as freight trains wear out the railway and in addition the terminals in citles are very expensive to own and maintain. On the basis of the average cost of the service, there is nothing earned toward paying taxes or inter-est or for depreciation and betterments.
